The Ocean House and its proprietor--Richmond Island--The Atlantic House. The gentlemanly proprietor of the Ocean House having made his appearance, and soon becoming familiar after stating to him the object of my visit, and introducing me to his lady and the other members of his interesting family, there being no boarders at the hotel at the time, I soon found myself domiciliated as one of the family, and therefore felt perfectly at home. On rambling round the premises of this delightful and salubrious retreat from the noise and bustle of the city, I thought a fine opportunity presented itself for observation and for desultory descriptions of whatever came under my observation during my stay. Joseph P. Chamberlin, Esq. , the proprietor, being a gentleman of intelligence, communicative, and perfectly willing to impart for the information of others whatever might serve to interest them, or contribute to their pleasure or amusement, therefore, I inquired particularly of the surrounding localities, --any thing, in short, that was worthy of observation; and I soon found I should be agreeably entertained. He informed me that the pretty bay I had noticed running north, was about a mile from the beach to a jutting ledge of rocks, which was the entrance; and formed the boundary or breakwater to the waves of the Atlantic, which, during a severe storm, madly dash against these rocky barriers, which present their adamant walls to bar the mighty power of the heaving surges. An...
